CHANGES

A sly smile slowly spread across Forrest Parker's face. I had just told him the yearbook's theme, DIFFERENCE IS. A little confused, I watched as the director of the Multicultural Center pulled out a poster for the school's Multicultural International Festival. There, emblazoned over the schedule of events, was the festival slogan, "Differences Enrich Us All."

Lately it seems that everyone has been thinking and celebrating the idea of differences at Mary Washington College.

So what is the difference at MWC? The DIFFERENCE IS . . . cultural awareness, an emphasis on equality, and a concentration on, well, differences. Not since the shift from all-woman to co-ed has MWC seen such internal modifications. From BOND to the Hispanic Student Association, cultural awareness has overwhelmed the college.

In addition to the forming of four new clubs, the campus celebrated day, week, and even month long festivals on minority, homosexual, and women's issues. New offices and a wide variety of speakers also contributed to recent differences.

During a time when state-wide budget cuts have reduced funding by 16 percent, the college has looked from external changes to internal ones. For example, after the postponement of several years' worth of construction plans for new parking lots and residence halls, a new Multicultural Center formed.

President William A. Anderson Jr. named Forrest A. Parker both acting assistant vice president and director of the Multicultural Center. Parker's position involves working with minority students of all races, and with the international students.

In keeping with his close relationship with students, Parker, formerly associate dean for admissions, also refers students to various college services, such as for tutorial assistance, learning assessment and study skills training.

As director of the center, Parker also tries to retain "faculty of color," as well as attract more minority students. Overall, out of approximately 3,700 students, the college is only 6 percent minority. However, in support of attracting more culturally diverse students, a significant 12 percent of the freshmen class were minority students, of which 8 percent were black.

The Multicultural Center sponsored many events, the biggest being the Multicultural/International Festival on April 6. Entertainment ranged from Argentinean dancers to a reggae band while both students and local citizens presented displays on British, Irish, Afro-American, and even Asian culture.

The college also established the new Office of International Programs. Headed by Brenda King, its main purpose is to aid the college's forty-nine international students with any adjustment problems. These students represented twenty different countries including China, Germany and Kuwait.

The Multicultural/International Festival even entertained kids.

Its second function was the Study Abroad program which consisted mainly of white, middle-class females though King attempted to raise the number of males and minorities who participate.

Faculty members contributed to another aspect of the office which was proposing international projects, changing current policies, and establishing new courses. Though the department did not implement any new courses, it researched current ones to determine future needs.

COAR, the Community Outreach and Resources program, also began. Partly the brainchild of Senior Liz Baumgarten, COAR is a volunteer service organization that provides aid and assistance to various needy groups in the Fredericksburg community. Though Baumgarten remained heavily involved with COAR as its student coordinator, Kathleen Knight took the position of assistant dean of Student Activities and Director of Community Services.

The purpose of COAR is to give both individuals and groups on campus the opportunity to engage in community service as well as to sponsor programs and discussion groups that help relate classroom learning and service learning.

One of COAR's goals is to stay on line with the diversity theme. Knight wanted an organization that would provide a diverse service movement on campus — COAR's programs were open to every kind of student.

To provide those diverse service opportunities, COAR asked for volunteers in seven groups: Big Brother, Big Sister for children, Hope House and Habitat for Humanity for the homeless, and Friends of the Rappahannock with environmental issues. Students also helped in areas of elderly care, community health and various crisis situations.

Specifically, some COAR events included a trash pickup of the Rappahannock in cooperation with the Ecology club, raising money for September 23's AIDS march in Washington D.C., and finally the "One Bright Day" community clean-up event on April 13.

COAR also won the Campus Outreach Opportunity League's award of best New Campus Initiative. In the contest, COAR competed against schools that began service organizations in the past four years.

Students themselves bonded together to create new organizations that would connect people from the world around. New groups such as BOND, Women of Color, the International Student Association, and the Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Student Association appeared on campus.

BOND, an organization of mostly black men, was cofounded by student Tracey Porter who wanted to help minority men feel involved with the campus. Forrest Parker also started the organization which, out of approximately 25 black men, nine joined in its first semester.

MWC also stressed diversity in its sponsoring of Martin Luther King week, a tribute which consisted of speakers, exhibits, and presentations. A main event was "Hands Across Campus," a human chain that stretched from George Washington Hall to the fountain. In addition, Tim Hughes and Todd Baker gave an encore presentation of the play "The Blood Knot."

A national videoconference kicked off February's Black History Month celebration which began as Negro History Week in 1926. Called "Beyond the Dream III: A Celebration of Black History — The Global Perspective," it consisted of more than twenty national and international leaders. Over 40 groups helped organize the month which consisted of both inside and outside the classroom events such as movies, plays, panel discussions, and speakers. Six gospel choirs joined together for the February 3 "Voices of Praise" performance. Also, speakers included Lindiwe Mabuza, chief executive of the African National Congress, Malika Shabazz, oldest daughter of the civil rights leader Malcom X, and Kenneth Mundy, attorney to former Washington D.C. mayor Marion Berry. Also, the Washington D.C. Pin Points Theatre presented the play "1001 Black Inventions."

Dr. Seyyed Hossein Nasr's presence as the school's fifteenth Distinguished Visitor in Residence helped further international awareness. Nasr, a contemporary scholar of Islamic culture, visited during February 13-14 and delivered the speech "Islam and the West: Yesterday and Today." His presence during the Gulf War was timely since Nasr was raised in the Middle East and has thorough knowledge of Muslim cultures.

The Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Student Association sponsored Gay Awareness Week, April 7-

12, which included programs ranging from support groups to homophobia workshops. Membership of the GLBSA was at an all-time high of 22-25 members who wanted to encourage an understanding environment for gays and had the slogan, "It's a gay thing. Let us help you understand."

Finally, the two-year-old local chapter of Amnesty International sponsored several events such as human rights activist Mecedeh Momeni, a write-a-thon, and a candlelight vigil.

Other multicultural programs such as Project SOAR, Upward Bound and the James Farmer Scholars program, named after James Farmer, the civil rights leader, continued. Also, MWC sponsored a celebration of Women of Color Week and of Women's History Month.

Multicultural

The first Multicultural International Festival sponsored by Mary Washington College was held on Saturday, April 6, 1991. The theme was "Differences Enrich Us All" and the festival took place throughout campus from George Washington Hall to the Monroe fountain. As pictured below, a number of foreign embassies were present at the festival including representatives from Nigeria, South Africa, China, Malawi, Malta, and Swaziland. Military officers from Quantico, Japan, Malaysia, Indonesia, Nigeria, and the Philippines were also in attendance.

Even the very young were at the festival enjoying this beautiful spring day.

The festival proved to be quite entertaining. Performances included dancers, singers, and poetry reading.

Club Carnival

Students were given an opportunity to talk with representatives from various school organizations during club carnival.

Devil-Goat Day

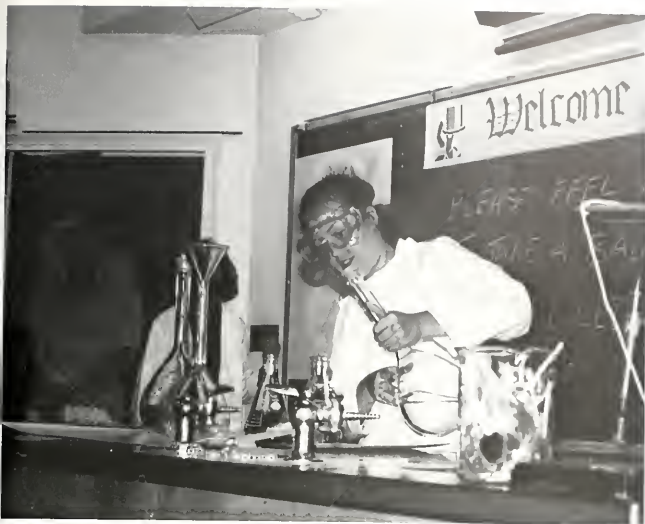

Family

Nearly 1,200 visitors attended Mary Washington College's annual Family Weekend on September 14, 15 and 16, 1990. Both the college and the city of Fredericksburg sponsored a variety of activities.

Many parents attended classes on Friday. Several local historical sights held open houses on Friday and Saturday. A luncheon, which featured live music, was held for parents and students in Monroe square. Four intercollegiate games were held at the Battleground complex. The weekend ended with a student talent show in Dodd Auditorium.

On Friday night, Dr. Chris Kilmartin performed a comedy routine.

Willard Hall's annual Rocktoberfest was a great success once again this year. Those attending enjoyed listening to performances by band What's Next? This event gave students a great way to spend one of the last warm days of fall.

The Rocktoberfest cookout provided a nice break from the usual Seacobeck cuisine.

Westmoreland Halls' annual Westock celebration was moved to the Great Hall this year because of the rain. Those attending enjoyed listening to two campus bands, the entertainment from Westock

"88," returned to perform one song. There was a great deal of musical variety because the reggae band Burma Jam also performed as well as the acoustic group Derry Berry and Algia.

Halloweens

This group of students came to Halloweens dressed as Interstate 95.

Chi was hard to recognize in his female disguise which was complete with painted nails and fish net stockings.

Coming as a can of Coors light was an idea that sounded refreshing to many Mary Washington students.

The blues brothers also made an appearance at the dance.

This group decided to dress as the tin man, cowardly lion, scarecrow and Dorothy from the Wizard of Oz.

Fall

X Luva and Dr. Long's Jazz Band provided musical entertainment in the student center for the Fall Formal dance.

Formal

Alcohol Alternatives Week

Alcohol Alternatives Week was sponsored by Mary Washington College during the week of October 22-26. The week featured a variety of programs designed to emphasize the danger of drug and alcohol abuse. The primary goal of the event was to expose young people to alternative activities which do not involve alcohol.

During the traditional Campus Fair several community organizations, including the Fredericksburg Rescue Squad, were represented to remind students of the dangers associated with alcohol consumption. A mocktail contest was also held in which each residence hall provided samples of their favorite non-alcoholic beverage.

Randolph's "Faked Orgasm" and Mercer's "Rum-less Revitalizer" were both popular but Virginia's "Witches Brewski" won the contest. The Jolly Co. set up a dart game to show that you can have fun without drinking. They promote playing games on Friday and Saturday nights rather than partying with alcohol.

Black

History

Month

An emphasis on the importance of recognizing contributions made by minority groups in our history, as well as current advances being made, was evident throughout black history month. Various campus clubs sponsored events to increase student awareness concerning the cultural diversities present in our society. An entire week of activities was dedicated to the memory of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Many speakers visited Mary Washington to address the issues surrounding the need for a greater consciousness about the still prevalent effects of past racial tensions. Movies with themes related to black issues such as "The Color Purple", "Glory", and "Mississippi Burning" were shown throughout the month. "The Blood Knot" was also performed in DuPont Hall.

Hands across campus was held during black history month to honor Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Meredith Momeni was on campus as a guest speaker for Amnesty International.

Dennis Rabim Watson came to Mary Washington to speak on multiculturalism and diversity.

Malcolm X's daughter, Malika Shavazz, also served as a guest speaker during black history month.

191st Night

Seniors celebrated having only 191 days remaining until graduation. The festivities were held in the Great Hall and entertainment was provided by a DJ.

100th Night

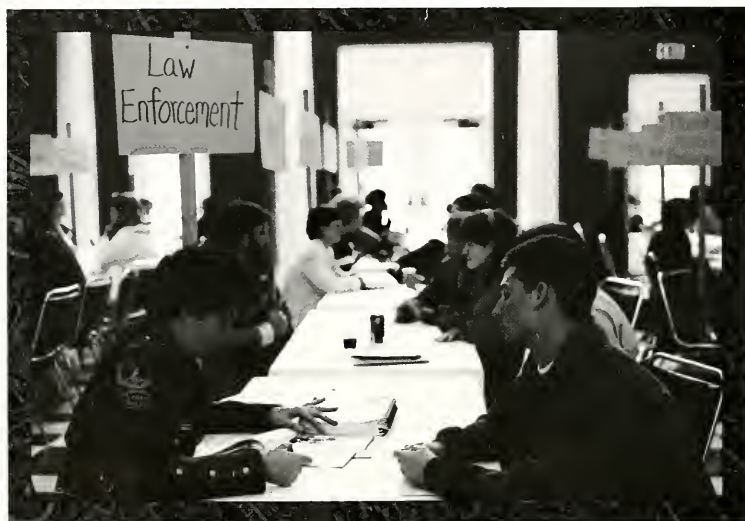

As the time continued to draw nearer seniors were increasingly anxious about graduation. With only one hundred days until the big moment arrived seniors found little difficulty joining for celebration.

Occupational Fair

The annual occupational fair was sponsored by the Office of Occupational Services. Students are given an opportunity to speak with representatives from many different careers. They are advised on which courses are most valuable in various professions and given information pertaining to application procedures.

Tom Deluca

Students attending Tom Deluca's performance in the Underground were quite impressed with his powers of hypnotism. Participants found themselves becoming suddenly hot or cold upon Mr. Deluca's command. Other students were made to regress back to their childhood and recall which toys were on their Christmas wish lists.

Valentine's Dance

Russel Hall and the new North Hall joined forces to sponsor this year's Valentine's Dance. The event was held in the Great Hall, and students attending were entertained by a live band. All of these Valentine's Day couples seemed to be having a wonderful time.

Monte

Carlo

Night

Brent, the French house, sponsored Monte Carlo Night once again this year. Students attending found themselves in a casino atmosphere surrounded by gambling tables, mocktails, and entertainment. Proceeds raised from this event were donated to charitable causes.

The play, The House of Blue Leaves, was presented by the Department of Dramatic Arts & Dance in Klein Theatre this spring.

Courtney Moates portrayed Viola in MWC's unique version of Twelfth Night. Our version set this Shakespearian play in a tropical setting with modern dress.

As a part of black history month, The Blood Knot, was also performed at Mary Washington this year.

Recycling

The Ecology Club encouraged campus wide recycling and was quite successful during the 1990-91 school year as you can see from the cans pictured below. Mary Washington College now sends nearly all of their waste products to be recycled. Things recycled include paint and cement in addition to the usual aluminum and paper products.

Robert Donovan places aluminum cans in a temporary bin at the physical plant before they are taken downtown to be recycled.

Matthew Ammon served as chairperson for the recycling branch of the ecology club and spent many hours collecting and educating others about recycling.

Russo

Pianist Eugenie Russo performed at Mary Washington College on March 27, 1991. This event was sponsored by the Committee for Campus Academic Resources.

Modern Logic

Wynton Marsalis

Egypt & the Now

Re-enactment

On April 7, 1991 Ball Circle was filled with members of the 54th Massachusetts Cavalry Reenactment Unit. Many of the participants were cast members from the movie Gloria. Their demonstrations included explanations of camping materials as well as Civil War weaponry.

Gay Awareness

The pictures found on this page were taken during the lecture, "Gay Marriage: An Idea whose Time Has Come" which was presented by Craig Dean and Patrick Gill. However this was only one of the numerous events held April 7-12 to increase gay awareness. Several readings were presented from gay and lesbian literature, George Sedano led a Homophobia Workshop, and the movie "The Holocaust and the Homosexual" was viewed in Monroe Hall. Wednesday, April 10 was also designated as "Wear jeans if you support Gay Rights" day.

As a way of countering the protests against the Gulf War that were widely publicized around campus, a group of students led by Jeff Jones organized a march across campus to show Mary Washington's support of the troops. A good number of people showed up and the procession marched from the Student Center to George Washington Hall chanting slogans of support.

Ring

Susan Johnson and Jim Tchir pose before ring dance in a room that has been plagued by non-Juniors, as evidenced by the inverted posters.

Mary Ball showed up in a Junior's room wearing a Budweiser bandana.

Rob Chase poses in his new "open air" room. Moving furniture was a popular way of wishing Juniors a happy week.

Week

Ring

Ring Week culminated on Saturday with the Junior Ring Dance, held on both floors of the Student Center. On the top floor, a Top Forty band played for a dancing mass of people, while the bottom floor featured a jazz band for those without enough energy for the other band. There was also a buffet in the Eagle's Nest to satisfy those groups that had not had anything to eat before the dance. Outside, authentic horse-drawn carriage rides were given from the fountain to Trinkle Hall and back. The fact that these rides were free has the happy group of Paul Sargent, Jennifer Cable, Michelle Lieb, and Timothy Ringgold smiling.

Debbie O'Donovan and visiting Daytonite, Chris Voeller, have some pre-dance enjoyment.

Charlene Gomes, sporting her Chucks, and Paul Sargent goof for the camera as Jennifer Cable looks on.

Dance

Grad

Graduating Seniors enjoyed one last celebration together on the Thursday before graduation. This gala event was held in the Student Center, with the Eagle's Nest set up as a restaurant with all the trimmings. A wonderful time was guaranteed for all, and the participants were not disappointed.

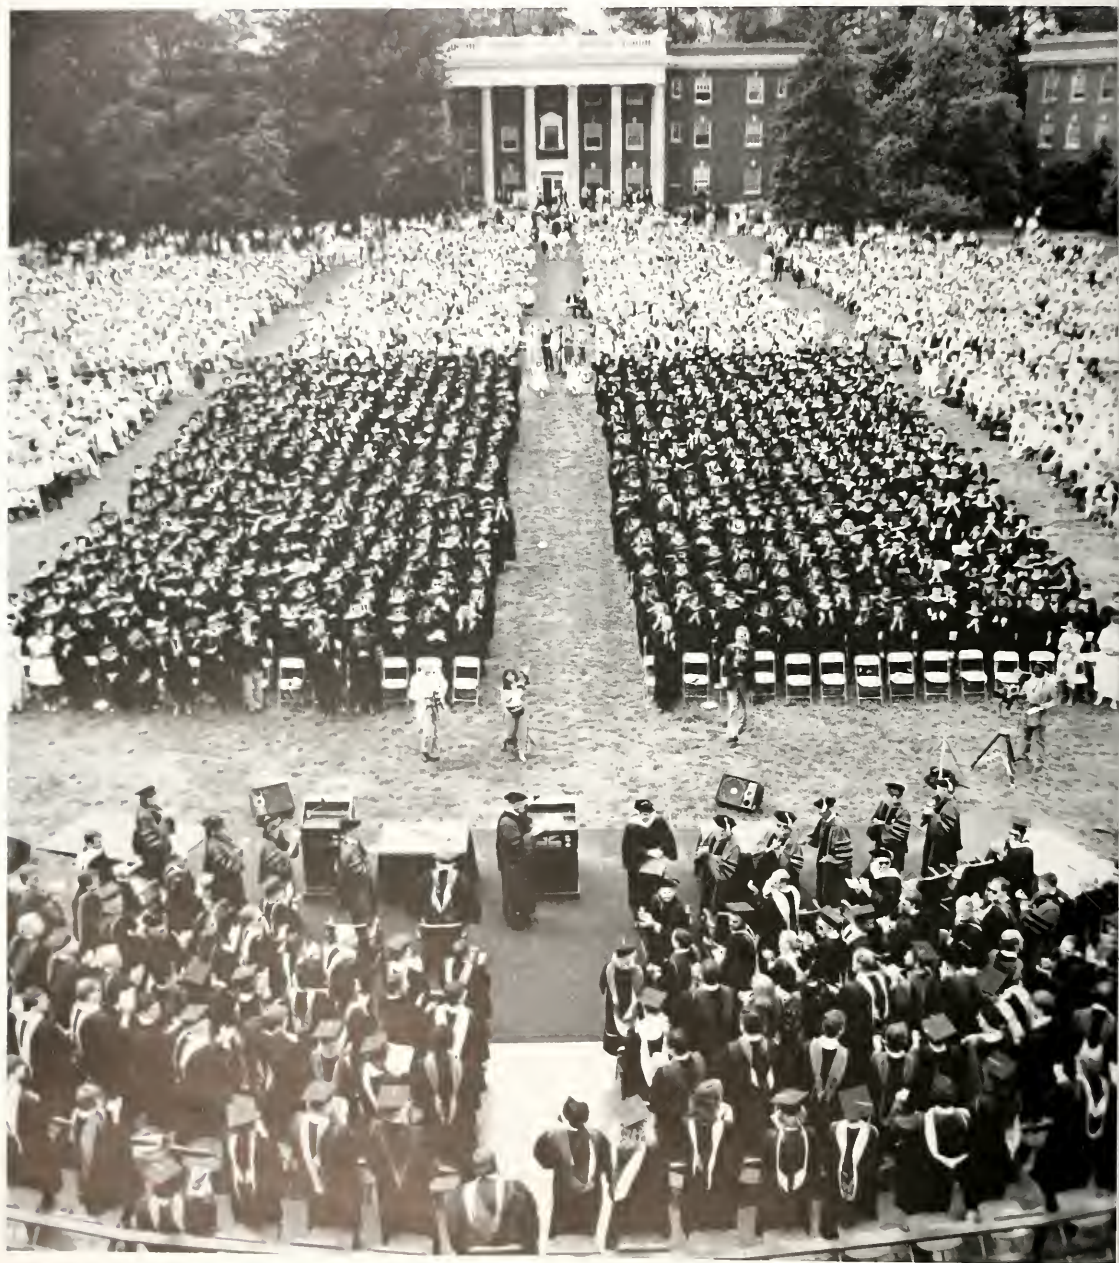

Ball

Marianne Kawalec and Chris Nadeau were having a wonderful time at the Graduation Ball.

Graduation

On May 11, the class of 1991 was graduated from Mary Washington College in Ball Circle. The commencement featured Mr. Eric Sevareid as the keynote speaker and addresses by the Rector of the Board of Visitors and the President of the Alumni Association. It was a hot day and many of those in attendance were seen fanning themselves as the Seniors filed through to receive their diplomas. Some graduates took this opportunity to broadcast messages to parents and others on the top of their caps.

Government

For better campus life.

 The Student Association is the main student governing body of the college. Its purpose is to work for a better college community through the development and strengthening of individual responsibility and citizenship. The Student Association shares with the faculty and the administration the obligation of respecting and promoting the tradition, standards, and objectives of the college and instilling the principles of self-government and democracy in every student. The Executive, Legislative, and Judicial departments comprise the governing body of the Student Association. The SA also works in student affairs through the work of committees that deal with Entertainment, Film, Travel, and other activities.

The Honor Code

Upholding the pledge

The Honor System is the moral code of conduct which governs our everyday lives, creating an environment in which trust and respect are commonplace. An important aspect of the Honor System is that it is a student run organization. The Honor Council President is elected from the student body as a whole, and the sixteen members of the Council are evenly divided to represent each class. Along with these seventeen people, are faculty advisors, Dorm Honor Contacts who act as liaisons between the students and the Council, and Student Honor advisors who serve as the advisors to the accused or the accuser prior to and during a trial. Finally, and maybe most important, anyone who signs the Honor Pledge can be called to serve as a juror at any time. The use of a student jury increases student involvement and concern about the System and its importance, as well as setting Mary Washington's system apart from others.

The Commuting Student Association is the organization for all non-residential students. There are over 1000 commuting students attending MWC. The CSA is the liason between the commuting students and residential students and the administration. The CSA elects fourteen people to the Senate and has representation on the SA Executive Cabinet and College Program Board to bridge this gap. The CSA's goal is to enhance communication about campus activities to commuting students in order to increase their involvement. It has made available on-campus mailboxes for commuters who wish them, has proposed a kitchenette for commuter use in the Tan Lounge, and maintains a newsletter and bulletin board. The CSA sponsors pizza parties and other socials, as well as a CSA day.

Preserving History

Walk down memory lane.

The Preservation Club of Mary Washington College serves to inform students and community members about historic preservation by sponsoring speakers, trips, fundraisers, and other activities. The Club has experienced new growth this year with over 50 student members, numerous other special members who have joined as "Friends of the Preservation Club" and eleven officers. To begin the year, the Club provided van tours of historic Fredericksburg over Parents' Weekend.

We also spent a day cleaning up the Barnes House, an 18th century home in Falmouth which is in the process of being stabilized and restored. The club's major project for the year is Ghostwalk, a walking tour of the "haunted" homes and sites in downtown Fredericksburg. The club also sells sweatshirts and t-shirts in several stores downtown and sponsors two spring trips, one that is open to club members and one that is mainly for community members and "Friends" of the club.

There's a club for almost every interest.

The German Club originated to bring together students interested in learning and experiencing German language and culture. The core group of membership includes those students living in the German House (Das Deutsche Eck) and students enrolled in German classes, although the welcome is extended to everyone. Whenever possible we travel to Richmond to participate in the Oktoberfest. Also, we show German films to offer insight into the cultural background of German speaking countries. For the past several years the German club has also sponsored a pretzel sale, which has proven successful campus-wide.

The Anthropology Club aims to expand learning beyond the classroom and to spread interest in anthropology. Activities include trips to museums of anthropological interest, guest speakers, and an annual exchange party. The majority of club members are Anthropology majors, but all students are welcome to join.

Multicultures

Seeking world-wide knowledge.

The goal of the ASA is to promote an appreciation of Asian culture and provide an atmosphere in which friendships between Asian, Asian-American, and non-Asian students can flourish through cultural and social events. The club was extremely active this year, hosting speakers, showing movies, traveling to the Kennedy Center, and participating in two state-wide Asian-American conferences, as well as bringing various cultural groups to campus.

The purpose of the BSA is to serve as a support mechanism, while its primary goal is the unification of the black student population. BOND is an organization dedicated to instilling and increasing pride among minority men. We have constantly been involved with various sectors of our community. We attempted to make BOND the premier outreach group on this campus. A balanced mix of social and service projects has become the focus of the BOND agenda for the present and upcoming semes-

Service

Help varies in form.

Amnesty International is a worldwide movement that works for the release of all prisoners of conscience, fair and prompt trials for political prisoners and an end to torture and executions. The MWC Chapter has sponsored various events from a successful write-a-thon to a candle light vigil. Also, a Jamnesty in the Underground, a Guerrilla Theatre, and a march in Richmond. This is only our second year of being involved in Amnesty, but we established a strong foundation. The monthly newsletter and bi-weekly article in the Bullet helped keep members on top of activities. Do not forget that you can make a difference.

Fun and Games

Outside activities were surprising.

The Jolly Company provides social and recreational alternatives to drinking. We play games of all kinds and take annual trips to the Maryland Renaissance Festival.

The Trek Club gives students a chance to explore the outdoors with others who have similar interests. Though new, the club has been quite successful. It sponsored two day hikes — One at Old Rag Mountain and one at North Mountain Trail — a ropes course, and a white water rafting trip. Trek Club officers hope to add to the agenda activities such as canoeing, camping, and rock climbing.

Alcohol Alternatives

Mocktails over Cocktails?

BACCHUS was founded by students to explore new alternatives and ideas for safe parties and fun social events — which promote responsible drinking. We began a designated driver program in the community, helped with Alcohol Awareness Week, and attended a regional convention of BACCHUS clubs from across Virginia. BACCHUS is a safe, fun, and responsible social club based on folks looking out for themselves and each other.

The Terrapin Club was the first club established at MWC. The main purpose is to have fun while practicing routines and figures. We compete in synchronized swimming competitions and put on shows for the students of MWC. The majority of the members had no previous experience but have learned quickly and greatly benefitted the team.

Athletics

Rugby teams excel.

MWC's Men's Rugby enjoyed an outstanding fall season. Despite many injuries early in the season, the A-side set a 3-1-1 record. The B-side played well also. Opponents for fall 1990 included Christopher Newport College, University of Richmond, William & Mary, VCU, and ODU. At the Virginia State Tournament, the Ed Lee Cup, MWC Men's Rugby won the first round competition by beating VMI 28-0. However, MWC was edged by JMU for a final's berth 18-15 in a very close, well played match. In competition for third place, MWC beat William & Mary, avenging the only A-side loss during the regular season. Several players were invited to try out for the University of Richmond select side in the spring.

Science Honors

Math and Science Achievers.

Chi Beta Phi is a science and math honor fraternity that promotes interest in science and mathematics and recognizes achievement in those fields. Kappa Sigma, the MWC chapter, gives a scholarship and sponsors guest speakers, in order to meet these goals. Each year as a main function Chi Beta Phi auctions off dinners, home baked goods, unusual outings, and other items received from the college and the community to raise the necessary funds to accomplish our purpose.

Scholastic Honor

Scholarship, Leadership, and Service

Mortar Board is a national senior honor society whose purpose is to support and promote the ideals of scholarship, leadership, and service. Students are chosen late in their junior year for their distinguished ability and achievement in each of these three areas. MWC's Cap and Gown chapter is dedicated to active campus and community service. Chapter activities ranged from participation in the fall phone-a-thon to sponsoring a Hunger Awareness Week fact map. Mortar Board has held fundraisers for activities such as sponsorship of the Rappahannock Council on Domestic Violence, as well as attending training sessions on coping with domestic violence. We provided the calendar for Women's History Month, including a panel discussion of Women's issues. To top off a productive year, Mortar Board is sponsoring a "Professor of the Year" award.

Recognition

As editor of the 1991 Battlefield, I would like to thank: all my editors and photographers for their much needed help, especially Dave Evans and Michelle Lieb; Cedric Rucker and Bette Luttrell for their advice; the Bullet for some additional facts; Mary Edwards, Dave Canatsey, and Rebecca Rotman for their computer work; the Office of Publications for faculty photographs; Vince Benigni and his staff for sports photographs and copy; Dr. Steve Watkins for my independent study and general advice; Candid Color Photography; Jostens' representatives Jim Ellis and Chris Brown; and numerous other people who helped out when things became too rough.

Without all of your help, this yearbook would not have been published. Thank you again for all you time and energy.
